

Getting the best from your Dr.App licences

When you buy licences for Dr.App, you want to be sure they are well used and helpful for your research students and the staff working with them. From experience with other institutions, we know that your internal communications will be crucial to raising awareness of Dr.App and getting it widely used, at the initial roll-out stage and through the year. Here's a checklist you might find helpful (revised August 2023):

- Have you told your PGR students about Dr.App?
- Have you told staff who supervise PhDs and those who run research skills training and support about the app?
- Do you invite students who are considering starting research degrees to use the app?
- Angel Productions have supplied a pdf flyer* about Dr.App to explain its contents and how to access it: have you shared this with the groups above?
- Do you explain Dr.App in your PGR induction programme?
- Are there links to Dr.App in your researcher development programme?
- Are there details of Dr.App in your PGR handbook?
- Are there details of Dr.App wherever PGR resources are listed online?
- Is your counselling service aware of Dr.App and 'The PhD Survival Video'?
- Is your research impact team aware of Dr.App and 'The Research Impact Video'?
- Are there common rooms or other spaces on campus where PGRs would see printed publicity for the app?
- Do you remind your PGR students about Dr.App in regular communications sent to them?

Please contact steve@angelproductions.co.uk:

- If you need us to resend the flyer*
- If you need anything else from us to help you promoting Dr.App internally.
- If you have any other ideas about promoting Dr.App that we could share with other institutions.
- If you have any feedback or questions for us.